

Ain Shams University

Faculty of Al-Ahsn

Department of Arabic Language

Arabic Language Program for Non-Native Speakers

Program Mission and Objectives

1- Mission

-To Provide a distinguished educational and research program to graduate cadres of specialists and researchers in Arabic language and literature and translation from and to non-Arabic speakers To be the bridge of communication between their cultures and Arab culture, and to prepare them to keep pace with the requirements of their labor market in line with the developments of the times in their societies and others.

2- Objectives

- Preparing human cadres of specialists in Arabic language, literature and Islamic studies to be able to meet the needs of the labor market in various fields, such as: (Media, translation in various fields, and fields of scientific research).
- Prepare researchers capable of comparing / to compare the Arabic language and literature with their mother tongue and literature.
- Preparing human cadres that can communicate culturally between the Arab and Islamic cultures and the culture of the graduate in order to achieve the goal of cultural exchange.
- Preparing cadres of graduates capable of scientific research and use modern technological means to keep pace with the innovations of the times.